DATE: January 15, 2020

SUBJ: State Compensation Commission report pursuant to Title 3, section 2-B, subsection 2

In accordance with 3 MRSA section 2-B, sub section 2, the State Compensation Commission submits its January, 2020 Final Report. We thank you for the opportunity to review and recommend changes to the compensation and benefits of those who serve in Maine's three branches of government.

During the process of researching and considering our responsibilities, the Commission members developed an even greater respect and appreciation of all who serve and support the people of Maine. The Commission feels strongly that our proposed recommendations are necessary to move Maine's public servants' compensation from last in the nation to a more fair and reasonable level. The Commission is available to meet with you to discuss our thoughts and the specifics of the report.

The report includes draft legislation of recommended statutory changes related to the functioning of the Commission. The report does not include draft legislation for the numerous recommended changes in compensation given that the State and Local Government Committee is authorized under 3 MRSA section 2-B to introduce a bill based on our final report. If requested by the Committee, the Commission would also be happy to prepare its own separate legislation advancing the report recommendations, as allowed by our statutory charge.

As Chair of the Commission, I want to thank the members of the Commission for their thoughtful, prepared, focused and collegial service. The Commission also thanks the staff of the Office of Fiscal and Program Review for their professional, substantive and responsive support of the Commission.

Respectfully submitted on behalf of the Commission,

Hon. Vendean Vafiades, Chair

INTRODUCTION

The rights of Maine citizens are supported and protected by our democratic institutions of government, which in turn rely on the talent and dedication of the people who serve in those institutions. These committed individuals ensure that an independent judiciary, and a representative legislature and Governor support a functioning, accessible democracy.

With greater political polarization and increasingly critical attitudes toward the actions of government, serving in legislative, judicial and executive offices is harder than ever. Our elected officials and judges sacrifice their personal and family time, their privacy, and opportunities for professional advancement and financial gain to serve. Demonstrating support and respect for those who serve in these positions is vital.

These realities have been at the forefront of the Maine State Compensation Commission’s work. Our recommendations for meaningful changes in compensation and related benefits for those who represent the State of Maine are rooted in our respect and appreciation of those who are willing to serve. The success of Maine’s democratic institutions relies on them.

“In the final analysis, a democratic government represents the sum total of the courage and the integrity of its individuals. It cannot be better than they are.”

PURPOSE

The State Compensation Commission (SCC or Commission), described in 3 M.R.S. § 2-B, is composed of five members and is tasked with reviewing:¹

1. Compensation of Legislators, representatives of Indian tribes, Secretary and Assistant Secretary of the Senate and Clerk and Assistant Clerk of the House of Representatives, including all payments for salaries, meals, housing, travel, mileage, constituent services and all other expenses and allowances, and for additional services by the President of the Senate, Speaker of the House of Representatives and members of legislative leadership;
2. Compensation for justices and judges, including all payments for salaries, meals, housing, travel, mileage and all other expenses and allowances, and for additional services by any justice or judge; and
3. Compensation for the Governor, including all payments for salaries, meals, housing, travel, mileage, constituent services and all other expenses and allowances.

PROCESS

During six public meetings, the Commission met with 12 individuals and conducted a public hearing to gather information and opinions pertaining to the compensation issues the commission was charged with reviewing. A complete list of the persons who participated in the Commission meetings is included as Appendix I.

In addition to meeting with these individuals, the Commission:

- Reviewed prior SCC and Judicial Compensation Commission reports;
- Reviewed recent legislation related to compensation changes for the governor, legislators, judges and justices;
- Collected data on the compensation history for the governor, legislators, judges and justices;
- Compared where Maine's Governor, legislators, judges and justices rank nationally and regionally for compensation received;
- Reviewed data on Maine household median, household mean, and per capita incomes;
- Reviewed benefit packages offered to the governor, legislators, judges and justices;
- Examined case load and administrative support available to judges and justices in Maine;
- Invited comments from current members of legislative leadership and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court; and
- Held a public hearing on December 16, 2019 to gather additional comments on draft recommendations.

SUMMARY CONCLUSIONS AND RECOMMENDATIONS

Legislature

The Commission finds that current legislative pay does not adequately compensate legislators for their dedicated public service, and likely has the effect of discouraging qualified Mainers from running for, or remaining in, the Legislature.

Maine State Senators and Representatives currently receive a stipend of $14,862.48 for the first legislative session, which typically lasts 6 months, and $10,581.92 for the second session, which typically lasts 4 months.

Compensation for legislators should be enough to make it financially possible for any qualified Mainer to serve. Each of the current and former legislators who testified before the Commission indicated that they viewed their work in the Legislature as a public service. They did not seek the office for the salary and benefits, nor expect to be compensated at a level comparable to what they might earn in private life. However, if legislative compensation is too low, the financial sacrifice of serving may be so great that it prevents some Mainers from serving, compromising the State's vision of a broad-based citizen legislature.

Legislative compensation has not kept pace with inflation over the last thirty years. For example, legislators in the 114th Legislature in 1990 received $16,500, for the two-year term which, adjusted for inflation, would be approximately $31,807 in 2019 dollars. Meanwhile, over the same time span, the demands on legislators have increased. Serving constituents has become a year-round responsibility. With the advent of email, texting, and use of social media as an important tool of communication, legislators are expected to be in constant communication with their peers, constituents, advocacy groups, and the public, even when the Legislature is not in session.

The current reimbursement rates for travel and lodging are also too low. The current mileage rate for legislators is 44¢ per mile for one round trip per week, and 44¢ per mile each subsequent day up to $38 per day. The rate of 44¢ per mile is just 75% of the federal mileage rate of 58¢ per mile, which is calculated annually by the IRS to fully compensate drivers for the cost of using their personal vehicle. Legislators need to be in Augusta when the legislature is in session, which requires many legislators to travel long distances from their homes. The farther a legislator drives, the greater the shortfall, especially after mileage is capped at $38 per day. The lodging rate, which is linked to the mileage rate and set at $38 per day, is also too low. Of 13 Augusta area hotels and bed & breakfasts reviewed in the fall of 2019, only 2 locations offered rates at or below $38 per day during the legislative session.

Finally, while the Senate President, Speaker and other leadership receive higher pay than legislators to compensate for additional responsibilities, committee chairs do not, though these positions involve substantial additional administrative, leadership, and time commitments.

To address these shortcomings, the Commission makes the following recommendations:

1. Increase base compensation for Legislators to a total of $32,000 per two-year term.²

As noted above, this would effectively match the stipend to that of legislators in 1990, adjusted for inflation, addressing the erosion of compensation over the intervening 30 years. This level is roughly equivalent to the annual per capita income in Maine of $32,095, so that compensation for two years of legislative service is on par with one year of the average Maine worker's salary.

2. Increase mileage rate to the federal rate.

Raising this rate to the current federal level more accurately reflects the costs of travel, including wear and tear on a personal vehicle. The current federal rate is 58¢ per mile.

3. Increase lodging rate to equal benefit received in mileage rate.

This equalizes the increased mileage rate with the lodging rate so that neither staying in a hotel or traveling back and forth from home each day is incentivized or penalized.

4. Grant Legislative Council authority to approve an additional stipend for committee chairs.

The Legislative Council is in the best position to recognize the increased demands of committee chairs and determine if an additional stipend is warranted and the amount of any approved stipend.

5. Maintain the current process for setting salaries for the Secretary and Assistant Secretary of the Senate, and the Clerk and Assistant Clerk of the House of Representatives. Further, amend Title 3 §2-B by removing these positions from the purview of the SCC.

The current process for setting these salaries, which relies in part on statute and on the Legislative Council, is sufficient to attract individuals to the position and compensates these individuals similarly to other legislative staff.

² The Constitution of Maine, Article IV, Section 7 prohibits any law which would increase the compensation of legislators to take effect during the Legislative session that it was enacted. As such, these recommendations would take effect with the start of the 130th Legislature.

Judiciary

The Commission finds that Maine's judicial salaries are the lowest in the country and this ranking does not reflect the respect and value that Maine holds for its judges and justices.

Maine judges and justices rank 51st in national salary rankings for associate justices of the courts of last resort (our Supreme Judicial Court) and judges and justices of general jurisdiction trial courts³ and are paid just 70% of the compensation received by their federal colleagues.

Maine judges and justices' compensation of $133,286 for trial judges and $142,209 for Supreme Court associate justices are the lowest in New England by over $20,000. Pay in the past 10 years for Maines judges and justices has barely kept up with inflation, while some Commissioner positions in the executive branch have increased by 30-50%.

Maine judges have a heavy workload and hear a full range of cases including criminal, civil, and family matters. They do most of their own research and writing of decisions and lack significant administrative and clerk support.⁴ Judges and justices have little flexibility in their schedule and most travel to numerous courts throughout the State. Judges and justices' personal and volunteer interests are restricted, and they are limited in their ability to participate fully in their community.

Given the range of cases heard by trial judges, a bench with a broad range of experience is optimal. Judges and justices are recruited from a pool of attorneys who, as a class, are compensated higher than the average wage, and for whom accepting a judgeship may mean a significant reduction in salary. Despite the comparatively low compensation and the personal impact of the position, to date Maine has been able to attract highly qualified attorneys to serve.

However, the Commission is concerned that current judicial compensation may threaten the continued ability to attract and retain the highly qualified and dedicated jurists that Maine now enjoys. The comparatively low compensation has made it more difficult to attract trial, defense, and business attorneys to serve. There also is evidence that the low compensation received by judges and justices has led some to leave the bench, with several individuals recently choosing to leave earlier than planned without seeking the opportunity to work as Active Retired Judges.

The position of Active Retired Judge (ARJ) status is crucial to support the work of the sitting trial judges. ARJs fill in for a judge who is sick or has a family problem and provide some relief and flexibility for sitting judges. Further, ARJs are extremely valuable in filling in if there is a scheduling problem or a need to clear up caseload backlogs. Given these important functions of ARJs, the trend of individuals choosing to forgo ARJ status is especially problematic.

To address these shortcomings, the Commission makes the following recommendations:

³ The national rankings include the District of Columbia, Northern Mariana Islands, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands.

⁴ The Maine Judicial branch has 56 positions for trial judges and justices and only 17 positions for law clerks to work with those judges. In New Hampshire, each of the judges in its trial court has a dedicated law clerk.

- 1. Increase salaries so that Maine judges and justices' salaries rank 35th nationally, increasing the salary of District Court judges and Superior Court justices to $150,000, Supreme Judicial Court justices to $169,000 and the Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court to $184,000.

The Commission believes that maintaining an independent judiciary is critical to a well-functioning democracy, and this salary adjustment better ensures that a broad range of qualified individuals are recruited and continue to serve. Increasing judicial salaries to a rank of 35th nationally would also bring them in line with where Maine ranks in terms of median household income (See Appendix II).

- 2. Increase the per diem pay for Active Retired Judges from $350 to $500.

As discussed above, these positions are crucial for the efficient and effective management of caseloads to benefit the public, and also provide some flexibility and support for sitting judges. Additional compensation will encourage retiring judges to transition to these important positions.

- 3. Increase the additional compensation for serving as Chief and Deputy Chief Judge of the trial courts to $10,000 additional for the Chief Judges and $5,000 additional for the Deputy Chief Judges.

The recommended increases for Deputy Chief Judges, the District Court Chief Judge, and the Superior Court Chief Justice are based on the additional administrative responsibilities required of the trial court leaders including scheduling and supervising judges and assigning and managing caseloads.

- 4. Grant the Chief Justice authority to approve an annual longevity payment to judges and justices at certain anniversary dates in recognition of years of service in the Maine judiciary.

All Maine District Court judges receive the same annual salary regardless of their years of service on the bench. The same is true for Maine Superior Court justices. While this is the case in the federal court system, and in most court systems in the country, it is not the case for others in public service in Maine. Public employees in Maine, and most employees in the private sector, are placed on a salary range with rates of pay increasing annually to the top of the range. Maine state employees also receive an annual payment ("longevity stipend") at 15, 20, 30, etc. years in recognition of their service to the state of Maine.

Governor

The Commission finds that the Maine Governor's salary is embarrassingly low, suggesting a disrespect for the position and making Maine an outlier from the rest of the country.

The Maine Governor's annual salary is the lowest in the nation at $70,000 and has not changed since 1987. Among New England states, the next closest state is New Hampshire at $134,581, almost double the salary of the Maine Governor. All who testified before the Commission on the Governor's compensation agreed that the salary is far too low.

Even though Maine ranks last in the nation for governor's salary, the executive branch in Maine is strong. For example, unlike the majority of states (43), Maine does not have a lieutenant governor, placing all executive authority and responsibility in the Governor. Further, the Maine Governor has strong veto and appointment powers compared with other states.^{5,6}

Salary is not the primary motivator for a Mainer to seek the governor's office, and the Commission does not expect the pool of interested candidates to change if the salary were increased. However, the Commission strongly believes that the current level of compensation does not comport with the level of effort expected from our chief executive, nor does it adequately reflect the dignity and respect Maine people hold for this office.

The Governor also receives an annual expense account in the amount of $30,000. The expense account was established by law in 1943 at $10,000, was increased to $15,000 in 1953, and was increased to $30,000 in 1990. While expenses of any sort have increased over that time, the amount appropriated has not kept up with any escalated costs.

To address these shortcomings, the Commission makes the following recommendations:⁷

1. Raise the Governor's salary to $130,000 per year, effective in 2022.

This would bring the salary of Maine's governor to 35th in the nation, and nearly equivalent to that of neighboring New Hampshire. The ranking of 35th is also where Maine ranks nationally in Median Household Income (see Appendix II). The change also partially accounts for the effect of inflation since the current salary of $70,000 was set by the Legislature in 1987. Adjusted for inflation, that would be $161,911 in 2019 dollars. The Commission believes it is appropriate to compensate the governor at an equivalent standing to Maine's median household income as compared among the 50 states.

⁵ The Governors: Powers. Council of State Governments. Numbers referenced do not include American Samoa, Guam, CNMI, and Puerto Rico.

The Constitution of Maine, Article V, Section 6 states that the compensation for the Governor may not be increased while the Governor is in office. As a result, this recommendation would not take effect until 2022 with a new gubernatorial term.

2. Increase the Governor's Expense Account to $40,000 each fiscal year.

Created in 1943, the Governor's expense account is a long-standing component of a Maine governor's total compensation package. While the legislative record does not indicate what motivated the Legislature to create the expense account at that time, the Commission believes it is important to enable a governor to be as free as possible from personal financial stress. The account has not kept pace with inflation, and adjusting for inflation from its 1990 amount would exceed the amount the Commission is recommending, with the inflation adjusted amount totaling $59,173. This increase to $40,000 would not become effective until after the next gubernatorial election in 2022.

OTHER PROPOSED LEGISLATION

1. Changes to the SCC statute (3 MRSA §2-B):
 - a. There should be a clearer process for nominating the 5th member of the commission, with the 5th member to serve as chair and appointed jointly by the Maine Speaker of the House and the Maine Senate President.
 - b. Amend the statute which requires the commission to meet 15 days after members are nominated to the commission to 15 days after the end of session.
 - c. Amend the statute changing which legislative positions the SCC must review (see recommendation 5 in legislative section).
2. Change references in statute so that salary received by individuals nominated in special elections matches the compensation received by other legislators.

APPENDIX IV: Variation among state Legislatures

Full- and Part-Time Legislatures

6/14/2017

It seems like an easy question: Which legislatures are full-time and which ones are part-time? But with 50 different formulas for designing a state legislature, it's difficult to paint this issue in black and white. So we've done it in green, gray and gold.

Being a legislator doesn't just mean attending legislative sessions and voting on proposed laws. State legislators also spend large amounts of time assisting constituents, studying state issues during the interim and campaigning for election. These activities go on throughout the year. Any assessment of the time requirements of the job should include all of these elements of legislative life.

Beyond that point, NCSL prefers to look more broadly at the capacity of legislatures to function as independent branches of government, capable of balancing the power of the executive branch and having the information necessary to make independent, informed policy decisions. To measure the capacity of legislatures, it's important to consider the amount of time legislators spend on the job, the amount they are compensated and the size of the legislature's staff.

NCSL has grouped the 50 state legislatures into three major categories: Green, Gray and Gold-and for those who want to know more, NCSL has provided some shading within those categories.

Green Legislatures (Full-time, well-paid, large staff)

Green legislatures require the most time of legislators, usually 80 percent or more of a full-time job. They have large staffs. In most Green states, legislators are paid enough to make a living without requiring outside income. These legislatures are more similar to Congress than are the other state legislatures. Most of the nation's largest population states fall in this category. Because there are marked differences within the category, we have subdivided the Green states. Those in Green generally spend more time on the job because their sessions are longer and their districts larger than those in Green Lite. As a result, they tend to have more staff and are compensated at a higher rate. Within subcategories, states are listed alphabetically.

Gray Legislatures (Hybrid)

Legislatures in the Gray category are hybrids. Legislatures in these states typically say that they spend more than two-thirds of a full time job being legislators. Although their income from legislative work is greater than that in the Gold states, it's usually not enough to allow them to make a living without having other sources of income. Legislatures in the Gray category have intermediate sized staff. States in the middle of the population range tend to have Gray legislatures.

Gold Legislatures (Part-time, low pay, small staff)

In the Gold states, on average lawmakers spend the equivalent of half of a full-time job doing legislative work. The compensation they receive for this work is quite low and requires them to have other sources of income in order to make a living. The Gold states have relatively small staffs. They are often called traditional or citizen legislatures and they are most often found in the smallest population, more rural states. Again, NCSL has divided these states into two groups. The legislatures in Gold are the most traditional or citizen legislatures. The legislatures in Gold Lite are slightly less traditional. States are listed alphabetically within subcategories.

Table 1 shows the breakdown of states by category. Table 2 shows the average scores for the Green, Gray and Gold states for time on the job, compensation and staff size. For 2017 legislator compensation figures, take a look at the latest figures.

APPENDIX IX: Draft legislation of other proposed recommendations

An Act to amend the Laws Governing the State Compensation Commission and Salary for Legislators who fill a seat that becomes vacant during a session.

Be it enacted by the People of the State of Maine as follows:

Sec. 1. 3 MRSA §2 is amended to read:

§2. Salary, expenses and travel of Members of the Legislature and representatives of Indian tribes

If a member of the Legislature dies or otherwise vacates the office, the successor is entitled to a salary from the date of seating, ~~computed as follows: two hundred ten dollars per week times the number of weeks remaining in the calendar year if the vacancy occurs in the first year and $150 per week for the number of weeks remaining in the calendar year if the vacancy occurs in the 2nd year~~ that is equal to the total salary paid to an individual Legislator for a full session divided by the total number of pay periods in a session, multiplied by the number of pay periods remaining in the session when the successor is seated.

Sec. 2. 3 MRSA §2-B, sub-§1 is amended to read:

1. State Compensation Commission; membership. The State Compensation Commission, established in Title 5, section 12004-G, subsection 26-D and referred to in this section as the "commission," consists of 5 members appointed in January of every odd-numbered year at the first regular session of each Legislature as follows:

- A. Two members appointed by the President of the Senate;
- B. Two members appointed by the Speaker of the House; and
- C. One member appointed ~~by a majority of the members appointed under paragraphs A and B~~ jointly by the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House, who serves as chair of the commission.

The 5 members must be residents of the State and appointed from the public. A person may not be appointed who is currently or has previously been a Legislator or a legislative employee.

All members must be appointed for a term to coincide with the legislative biennium. A vacancy must be filled in the same manner as the original appointment for the balance of the unexpired term.

The members of the commission are entitled to a per diem, expenses and allowances at the same rate as Legislators.

Sec. 3. 3 MRSA §2-B, sub-§2 is further amended to read:

2. Duties of commission. No later than January 15th of every even-numbered year the commission shall submit to the Legislature and the joint standing committee of the Legislature having jurisdiction over state and local government matters a final report of the commission. In the last year of each gubernatorial term of office, the report must contain a recommendation for compensation of the Governor as established in Title 2, section 1. A report under this subsection must contain:

- A. A description of the commission's activities;
- B. The recommendations of the commission:

(1-A) For the report required in the last year of a gubernatorial term, for compensation for the Governor, including all payments for salaries, meals, housing, travel, mileage, constituent services and all other expenses and allowances;

(1-B) For compensation for justices and judges, including all payments for salaries, meals, housing, travel, mileage and all other expenses and allowances, and for additional services by any justice or judge. Nothing in this subparagraph prevents the judicial branch from making recommendations to the Governor or Legislature for compensation for justices and judges, including, but not limited to, recommendations made by the Chief Justice of the Supreme Judicial Court in preparing the budget of the judicial branch as required by Title 4, section 1; and

(1-C) For compensation of Legislators, representatives of Indian tribes, ~~Secretary and Assistant Secretary of the Senate and Clerk and Assistant Clerk of the House of Representatives~~, including all payments for salaries, meals, housing, travel, mileage, constituent services and all other expenses and allowances, and for additional services by the President of the Senate, Speaker of the House of Representatives and members of legislative leadership;

- D. Drafts of any legislation required to implement its recommendations; and

E. Any other material and recommendations that commission members may wish to submit.

Before reporting as required in this subsection and subsequent to giving public notice, the commission shall hold a public hearing on the report. Subsequent to reporting, the commission shall meet, if requested, with the Governor, the Legislative Council and legislative committees to discuss the report.

The joint standing committee of the Legislature having jurisdiction over state and local government matters may introduce a bill based upon the final report of the commission.

Sec. 4. 3 MRSA §2-B, sub-§2 is further amended to read:

3. Appointments; meetings. The Executive Director of the Legislative Council must be notified by the presiding officers once the appointment of the initial 4 members has been made. Within 15 days ~~of the appointment of the initial 4 members~~ after final adjournment of a legislative session in odd-numbered years, the Chair of the Legislative Council shall call and convene the first meeting of the commission.
